Perennial Border Gem Discovered

Every once in a while a little gem is discovered for the home gardener. New for 2007, that little gem is Aquilegia 'Miss M I Huish', which Thompson & Morgan has teamed with Aquilegia 'Green Apples' to create a stunning planting duo.

Aquilegia vulgaris 'Miss M I Huish'

NEW 2007

The dark violet, double, spur-less, clematis-like flowers of Aquilegia 'Miss M I Huish' are just like the traditional 'granny's bonnet' shaped Aquilegia blooms of old. Strong, sturdy, multi-headed stems host downward facing captivating heads that will gently nod in the slightest breeze.

Aquilegia 'Miss M I Huish' will grow to a height of 60cm (24in) and is therefore ideal for planting in small drifts of three or five plants towards the middle of perennial borders. This variety creates an interesting partnership and impressive effect when planted with Aquilegia 'Green Apples'.

£1.49 for 50 seeds.

Aquilegia vulgaris 'Miss M I Huish'

Aquilegia x hybrida 'Green Apples'

Aquilegia x hybrida 'Green Apples'

The first green clematis-flowered Aquilegia, introduced from seed in 2005. Its young buds open in a delightful shade of lime-green and fade to a sumptuous apple-green before ageing to cream. Growing to a height of 60cm (24in), Aquilegia 'Green Apples' will make an interesting border feature and is a perfect companion to Aquilegia 'Miss M I Huish'.

£2.79 for 20 seeds.

Aquilegias are best sown from February to June or September to October for flowering the following summer.
