Largest Flowered Thunbergia from Seed!

In 2005 Thompson & Morgan introduced the Climbing Garden section to its Seed Catalogue in order to help its customers find plants for growing up and hiding ugly fences and trellis, or for growing over an archway or up an obelisk adding height to containers on the patio.

New for 2007 Thompson & Morgan is introducing the largest flowered Thunbergia from seed!

Thunbergia alata 'Superstar Orange'

NEW & EXCLUSIVE 2007 This stunning bright orange climber really is a superstar and has the largest 'Black-Eyed Susan' flowers we have ever seen on a seed raised Thunbergia. Each huge bright orange flower has a distinctive black eye and is at least twice the size of a normal Thunbergia and dwarfs the circumference of a Pound Coin.

This very vigorous climber will soon reach a height of 2m (6ft) and becomes covered in these large vibrant orange blooms and will look spectacular trained up a trellis attached to a sunny fence.

Thunbergia 'Superstar Orange' also makes an impressive display planted in a large container and trained up an obelisk or wig wam of canes.

Thunbergia are best sown under glass or on a warm windowsill in February to April and grown on until big enough to plant out after all risk of frost at the end of May. 'Superstar Orange' will flower from July through to the first autumn frosts. £2.99 for 12 seeds.

Also new to the Climbing Garden range for 2007 is Ipomoea tri-color 'Candy Pink'.

Morning Glory 'Candy Pink'

NEW & EXCLUSIVE 2007 This spectacular Morning Glory will quickly climb up to 2 –2.4m (6-8ft) high. The vigorous twining stems become covered in attractive, large candy pink blooms, each enhanced by a distinct paler pink, five pointed cross which shoots out from the centre of the white throats of each flower.

These vigorous plants flower all summer, quickly climbing up trellis, fences or looking spectacular twining through obelisks in containers.

For the perfect colour combination and planting partners try growing Ipomoea 'Candy Pink' and Ipomoea 'Heavenly Blue' together.

Ipomoea are best sown under glass or on a warm windowsill from March to April and grown on until big enough to plant out after all risk of frost at the end of May. 'Candy Pink' will flower from July through to the first autumn frosts. £1.49 for 30 seeds.
